·JOB·MORK· STATLY AND PROMPTLY EXECUTED AT THE INTELLIGENCER JOB ROOMS. BLAINE AND GOFF.

An Interview With item, N. D. Scott, of This City, at Pittsburg.

It is James G. Blaine, of Maine, and Judge Goff, of West Virginia, whose names will be placed before the Republican nominating convention for the first and second places on the national ticket, according to the Hon. N. B. Scott, of Wheeling at the Mononga-heia last evening. Mr. Scott came up from the West Virginia capital on a matter of business, as he said. It was something more than a coincidence that his arrival should have been preceded only a few hours by that of the Hon. Mahlon Chance, of New York, ex-sec-retary of the tariff league. The gen-retary of the tariff league. The gentlemen met late in the evening in the corridor. Mr. Scott approached Mr. Chance, carrying a small piece of paper between his fingers.

"I am sorry not to have met you carlier," he said. "I have just received your note and am ready to receive the letter you refer to."

Eurlier in the evening, while awaiting Mr. Chance, Mr. Scott showed that gentleman's note to the reporter. The tenor of it was that he, Mr. Chance, had a letter from the Hon. Stephen B. Elkius, at Washington, to Mr. Scott The significance of the letter can only be estimated from what Mr. Scott says

The significance of the letter can only be estimated from what Mr. Scott says regarding the national political situation. If is known to be very close to the secretary of war, and the communication is surraised to have reference to the plan of campaign being pursued, as it is stated, under the authority of the president. Mr. Scott stated last night in reply to questions that there was in the first place perfect cordiality and a distinct understanding between the president and the secretary as to the presidential nomination.

"I can tell you," he said, "that while Mr. Blaine is neither seeking nor working for the nomination, that he will accept it, provided his health will warrant him in undertaking the fatigue of a campaign. In the event of his signifying his willingrass.

In the event of his signifyrantifim in undertaking the latigue of a campaign. In the event of his signifying his willingness to accept it, Mr. Harrison's name will not go before the convention at all. This is an arrangement well understood between the two. Mr. Blaine's name will go before the convention and Mr. Harrison will stand aloof."

"Whose will be the second name on the ticket?"
"That of Judge Goff, of West Virginia.

the ticket?"

"That of Judge Goff, of West Virginia. A number of states are already prepared to inderse him. Just how many I do not care to say. The ticket will be Blaine and Goff, for I think Mr. Blaine will accept the nomination."

Turning to West Virginia on politics Mr. Scott said that ex-Congressman Atkinson would receive the nomination for the governorship. The Democrats were said to have in view State Senator Watts on their ticket.

Mr. Chance would not discuss politics. He said he came here on private business and did not care to be interviewed. When D. C. Ripley walked into the hotel at 10:30 o clock and was greeted by Messrs. Chance and Scott, Mr. Chance said to a reporter that no significance should be petted. said to a reporter that no significance should be attached to the meeting. They were all three members of the tariff leauzue, and so had a common topic of conversation to discuss.

ONE OF THE OLDEST.

Centenarian who was Born in Fort Henry at Wheeling Still Living Near Keckuk, Iowa.

A dispatch from Keokuk, Iowa to the Chicago Globe says: Gen. William Harrison, living near San Franasville, in Clark county, Missouri, not far from this city, is the oldest man in this city or vicinity whose age is well authenticated. General age is well authenticated. General Harrlson was born at Wheeling, W. Va., in 1794, in Fort Henry, erected to defend the whites against their Indian foes. General Harrison came west in 1820, locating that year at the farm upon which he still lives. He has voted at nineteen Presidential elections, his first vote being cast in 1816 when Montoe was elected. In politics the general neually supported the candidate of the Whig and Republican parties. Andrew Jackson being the candidate of his choice, the general heartily voted for him in 1828 and 1832. Since 1856 he has worshiped other gods and voted with the Republicans. Alexander McNair was governor of Missouri when General Harrison located in that state. The general's home is near a trail used in early days by various tribes of Indians in their pilgrimages up and down the Des Moines river. This has been his home for nearly scenty-five years. Ho frequently entertained Black Hawk and other famous chiefs at his house, and tells of their friendship for him with pleasure and delight. Although now feeble in health, his memory remains unimpaired, and in a conversation makes his listeners realize at once that they are in the presence of a great and a good man. He is instructive and enter-Harrison was born at Wheeling, W. they are in the presence of a great and a good man. He is instructive and enter-taining. With him there is no waste of words. His voice indicates strength and good man. He is instructive and entertaining. With him there is no waste of words. His voice indicates strength and force of character. His sentences are spoken in words of directness and kindliness that tell of his natural goodness of heart. He makes one feel that he is a person of another century—one of a different world, and such he is. During his lifetime all the world's greatest inventions and discoveries have been made. For seventy-two years he has lived on the same farm. Probably there isn't another person in this country of whom this can be said. General Harrison has seen the clock of time turned forward almost a century. On an elevated ridge a short distance north of his home is a cemetery, and here he has selected a location where he has requested to be buried, which, it is hoped, will not be necessary until long after he has visited the World's Fair at Chicago, where he will be able to see what the countries of the world have done during his long span of life.

"I've had some queer experiences dur-ing the last quarter of a century," re-marked Sol Smith Russell the other night between acts at the Grand, "but the one which produced the most pow-orful impression on me, I think occured, last year at Mobile. "Wondering at the necessity for so much deliberation I at last lost patience and said rather sharply: 'See here! I want a glass water and I want it now. I'm in a hurry,'

"The darky seemed to be genninely alarmed, for he started toward the kitchen at a brisk gait, walked half way across the dining, room, halted, wheeled about and rather timidly returned to my table, where he made a most obsequious how where he made a most obsequious bow and added, apologetically, 'Presently,

Lancaster Law Revice.

A rather crude citizen of Seguin, a small town in Western Texas, was elected justice of the peace, and the only law book he had was Cushing's Manual. The first case before him was that of a cowboy for stealing a steer. When the case was called the leading lawyer of the town, the Hon. John Ireland by name, was there to defend the prisoner. "As there is no counsel for the other side," he said, "I make a motion that the case be dismissed." The justice looked over his manual. "A motion has to be seconded," he said. "I second the motion," promptly responded the prisoner. "The motion has been seconded that the case be dismissed," said the court; "all in favor will please say 'aye." The prisoner and his attorney voted "aye." "All those opposed will say 'no." Nobedy voted. "The motion is carried and the case is dismissed," repeated the court. "A motion to adjourn is now in order." The prisoner made the motion and the court adjourned to a saloon in the vicinity. Lancaster Law Review court adjourned to a saloon in the vicinity.
